

LINDA BALTUONIS

LINDA BALTUONIS

Consultant

Linda Baltuonis is a conflict resolution and team building specialist with Alpine International. In this role, she incorporates extensive experience in negotiations, alternative dispute resolution, team-building and corporate training in government having worked in this arena since 1999.

Linda is focused on the design of innovative and practical solutions to address corporate challenges, and her work experience includes building team synergy and collaboration, addressing workplace and interpersonal conflicts, and developing and implementing negotiation strategies, all with the goal of helping organizations improve their communications and the way they do business.

In addition to her work as a conflict resolution specialist, Linda has also built extensive experience in assisting leaders with change management and strategic communications, including communicating change to employees and outside stakeholders, managing impacts and addressing resistance.

Linda's most significant professional achievements have been in assisting the government of Canada to resolve intercultural disputes and conclude significant historical land and resource treaties in the Arctic. For her work, Linda was presented with several awards by the Canadian government. Since she arrived in Japan in 2011, Linda has been able to apply her skills and abilities by assisting the Canadian Embassy in Tokyo with cultural awareness and transition services for Canadian diplomats.

- L.L.M. (Master of Law) with concentration in Alternative Dispute Resolution, Osgoode Hall Law School , Canada
- B.A. in Political Science, University of Waterloo, Canada
- Graduate certificate in conflict resolution, Carleton University, Canada

Languages: English, French

