

MASAKO NEMOTO

Consultant

Masako Nemoto is a consultant with Alpine International specializing in team building and transformational leadership. In her role, Masako employs her experience from a wellspring of human studies, including life coaching, science and art coaching. In addition, she has written and published a book on relationship coaching.

Through various consultancy assignments, Masako has worked with some of the world's largest organizations around the world in what she calls "transformation coaching." Executive level associates of companies such as Mitsubishi Corporation, Japan Aviation Electronics Industry, Morgan Stanley Japan Securities, Bank of Japan, Cisco Systems, Pfizer, and Intel have all worked with Masako, benefiting from her skills as a team builder in bringing disparate cultures, attitudes, work styles, and behaviors together.

Since many of her clients have learned of her transformation consulting work from others who have experienced it, is a great source of satisfaction and pride to Masako. Her methods and ideas are respectfully beyond traditional Japanese customs, and it was only with persistence and resulting proof that she has inspired and influenced leading firms – including at least one skeptical former employer – to bring her transformational training to their organizations, with much success.
